"Our Collection Offers The Best In Quality"

We are pleased to present to you our new catalog of choice stud plants, show plants and many new hybrid seedlings.

We are making every effort to obtain many of the fine new hybrids as they become available, to use as stud plants, to add to our fine collection of proven parent plants. With this combination we are endeavouring to give you plants that will produce finer flowers, with excellent form, size and keeping qualities.

Our business and reputation have been built on quality and integrity. We have received many hundreds of letters from all parts of the world, from both amateur growers and connoisseurs alike, who have been more than satisfied with the results of the plants they have received from us.

Besides the many new hybrid plants listed we can also supply many botanicals not listed which we can acquire for you through our many sources of supply. Please let us know your needs.

We will be more than happy to assist the beginner and help him select the plants best suited for his or her growing conditions.

We wish at this time to thank the many satisfied customers for their past patronage and hope in the coming year to have the opportunity of serving many new customers, along with our already satisfied ones. If at any time you are in our area please stop in and meet us personally.

For a flower that is different, this one tops the list. The wide band of color centering the petals appears as though an artist stroked his brush from the base to the tip. The deep fuchsia colored lip matches the color in the petals. The sepals are erect. The flower has good form and extremely long lasting qualities.

The yellow area predominates on the flower on the front section of the lip and is bordered on either side by margins of deep purple. Sepals and petals are creamy white and the entire flower has good substance.

Care of your Orchids in the home . . .

C. Skinnerii

The following suggestions are of necessity mostly generalities, as the kind of potting medium you are using, the size of the pot, the amount of humidity in your area and the exposure to drying winds, as well as many other factors, help determine your watering and feeding schedule.

LOCATION . . .

Grow orchid plants near a window or under a tree, giving as much light as possible without burning. Do not let the sun shine directly on the plant except early morning or late afternoon, the exception being terete vandas and a few botanicals which do well in full sun. Vandas require the most sun, cattleyas and many botanicals a little less, phalaenopsis and cypripediums the least amount.

WATERING . . .

Pot water plants heavily by filling pots completely once a week. During the hot summer months give a light spray over the leaves daily. During the cool winter months apply a light spray over the leaves about twice a week. Vandas and phalaenopsis can be watered daily. Remember large pots will stay wet much longer than small pots Osmunda does not dry out as rapidly as tree fern and bark.

TEMPERATURE . . .

Orchid plants like "comfortable living" home temperature. They will stand cold snaps of short duration but will not tolerate frost or freezing temperatures.

HUMIDITY . . .

If plants are grown indoors where there may be heat, the pot can be placed in a tray containing gravel or small pebbles. Keep some water in the tray with the water level being constantly below the bottom of the pot.

FERTILIZING . . .

Fertilize cattleyas which are potted in bark once a month with a high nitrogen fertilizer such as 30-10-10; cattleyas potted in tree fern or osmunda need a balanced orchid fertilizer such as Vitex 18-18-18, or Hyponex or a similar product. Vandas, phalaenopsis and many of the botanicals will benefit from a weekly feeding, alternating organic fertilizer such as fish emulsion with a balanced chemical fertilizer.

REPOTTING . . .

Plants should be repotted on an average of every two to three years, or when the plant grows over the edge of the pot, or the potting breaks down and becomes soft so that you can push your finger down into the medium easily. We will repot your orchid for you for a nominal fee when needed.

NON-WARRANTY . . .

Because growing conditions and cultural methods are not the same in every locality, we — R. H. GORE - ORCHIDS — give no warranty, express or implied, as to the productiveness of any of the plants we sell and will not be in any way responsible for the crop. Our liability is limited to the purchase price of plants. All prices listed in our catalog are F. O. B. Fort Lauderdale, Florida.
